Femininity

By Sis. Brenda Wilkins

"And the LORD God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him." The all knowing, all loving, all magnificent God created "Femininity." Culture and opinions cannot take away God's creation from us.

The tone of the world today is set to demean, ridicule and devalue our God ordained place as 'feminine' women. True success and freedom comes with the knowledge that we have a vital and important role in life as God's handiwork, as His creation.

A fulfilled successful life only comes through a life that lives to glorify God. As we were created for fellowship with God, so we find life's truest blessings only through Him. As a single woman carries out the duties of life that are put in her path, living to glorify God in all that she partakes in for His best advantage, she will find her fulfillment through God and not dependent on a mate to fulfill her happiness. A successful and happy single woman will make a successful and happy bride. Why? Because, she has found her hearts longing, her femininity is fulfilled through serving God.

As married women, we know and live our God ordained place when we live to glorify God. Femininity is not imposed limitations, submitted and subdued womanhood, oppressed and created by a harsh domineering God as the feminist movement of the world would have us believe. Femininity finds joy in affirming the leadership of her husband and being a caretaker of her home. Proverbs 14:1, "Every wise woman buildeth her house:..." Living out the God ordained role to glorify God uplifts and enables the woman in an abusive and broken relationship to find her fulfillment in Divine love. When God is the ultimate authority, femininity is fortified in a willingness to battle the devil and not concede to bitterness and malice. We must not allow the dictates of our culture steal from us the joy of our God given femininity. True femininity is strength and gentleness under the control of our Creator. The Proverbs 31 woman portrays for us the beautiful example of God's positive, vibrant womanhood. Again, we cannot let our culture steal the true meaning of being a woman from us; only we by relinquishing control to satan can give that up. Adam and Eve overturned the marvelous order by God's design for the true beauty of the home. God created a beautiful difference, masculinity and femininity, equal in God's sight but different roles. Jesus, the ultimate example of a sacrificial loving husband gave us another chance through His submission, by His death on the cross for us, to reverse the chain of destruction set out by satan.

The feminist of the world betray femininity as languid, weak, and insecure. They feel they must come across as tough as any man, severe and masculine. Dress and speak with boldness and vulgarity to compete in our society. We cannot define our own existence, Romans 9:20-21 tells us the potter has power to make us as he sees fit. Who are we to question our Creator or oppose His purpose? Any success that sacrifices the God ordained place for femininity never brings true joy or happiness. Regardless how elevated or esteemed the position, it will ultimately breed selfishness, loneliness and frustration.

We have numerous examples in the Bible of feminine, strong womanhood. Godly women who were given many talents besides the traditional role of wives and mothers. But, never do you see an example of a godly woman betraying or sacrificing her calling of wife and motherhood.

Mary: mother of Jesus, highly favored one, blessed among women, a woman that found her fulfillment in glorifying God. Chaste, humble, devoted, her strength was in her self-discipline for God's glory. When given the agonizing, humiliating task of a virgin birth, Mary's response was, "...Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word." Luke 1:38.

Debra: a woman of wisdom and integrity. She was a homemaker, the wife of Lappidoth, a prophetess, a singer, a poet, a Judge and a deliverer, she referred to her self as "a mother in Israel." She had a faith and a willingness to trust in God unlike the fearful and unfaithful nation of Israel.

Esther: a courageous woman, a woman of influence because she allowed herself to be used "For such a time as this" by God to help deliver the Jewish nation from extermination. Esther 7:3-4.

Ruth: "I am Ruth thine handmaid..." Ruth 3:9. Loving daughter-in-law, committed and courageous.

Abigail: prepared, accepted responsibility for her households well being, humble in her wisdom, intelligent, God's servant to David in interference from murder.

And...so the list goes on and on. Submission and a close relationship with God made these women role models. As godly women we are also chosen by God to fulfill our purpose in the lives of our family, neighbors, co-workers, etc. in the world around us. A true reflection of God's glorious creation will give us confidence to understand the full value in our God ordained places.

Submission and sacrificial loving and living, both male and female, is the true example of God and His church. This life, lived out and carried over into Godly homes, illustrates the God ordained flowchart for blessed unity. A unity our loving God desires for His children and His church to enjoy!

By refusing to esteem our femininity, cherish our God ordained talents and roles as women, whether single or married, we are demeaning God's plan and refusing to honor Him. If we as woman usurp authority as helpmeets, neglect sustaining, fulfilling, and honoring our God ordained role we are returning to the place of rejection in God's eyes, just as our mother Eve did in the beginning.

Understanding the valued, beautiful place God ordained for us as women sets us free from the lies the devil set out to destroy us with. True freedom revolves from self-discipline, all working together to bring about a safe enjoyable place to grow. "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make your free." John 8:32. Liberated freedom is to cherish and embrace our roles with God's approval and for His glory.

Tornado Praise

By Sis. Elina Elwell

I have hesitated almost a year to write about my experiences during the tornado, as I felt the need to just praise God and not claim any glory or sensationalism for myself. It has been one of those things that people are curious about, and everyone wants to tell their bit of history, but my story is one of mercy, love and revelation. One in which I truly did nothing but obey God's leadings, and He revealed His unimaginable love and protection to me.

Due to some of life's twists and turns, I began working in the Joplin, MO Walmart in March of 2011, and while I was thankful for the job, one of the hardest things was having my family go to church without me on Sunday morning, while I went to work. I struggled on Sundays more than any other day, to keep the joy of the Lord in my heart. This particular Sunday, May 22, 2011, was no different, and on the way to work I had a little consecration service. There is a contemporary Christian song called, "I Will Praise You in This Storm," and that song played on the radio as I was driving to work. I felt like the storms of life were overtaking me and that the only hope I had, was to ask God to help me during this battle. Little did I know that one of the greatest storms of my life was about to occur.

The day progressed normally and while the morning was hot and humid, it was nothing unusual. I worked through the morning and went to lunch at a little place called Freddie's in front of Walmart. When I came back from lunch, I had to finish watering the displays in the front of the store by the entrances and the rose display, so I took the watering tank and went up to the front of the store. I worked for a couple of hours and as I worked I was just enjoying the flowers and did not notice the sky was getting darker. I had just finished watering and I noticed how heavy the air was, how absolutely still and oppressive, to the point that it almost hurt to breath as I rolled the watering cart back down. The sky was ominous, a dark dirty grey-black. It almost looked like nightfall. As I got back to the lawn and garden area, one of the young men that worked there was leaving, as he got off at 5:00, and he told me the tornado sirens were going off and I needed to get inside. I did not hear the sirens, so I put the watering cart away, and went to sit down for a rest in one of the displays of outdoor furniture, as it was my break time, and I was tired. I sat there for five or ten minutes and one of the managers came through telling us all to go to the "Site to Store" area. I did not know there was a tornado and thought they were just taking precautions, but I obeyed and went to the back of the store. As we sat there nothing was happening and after ten minutes or so, I went around the counter and used the restroom. I thought about staying in the bathroom as I thought it would be safer, but then changed my mind and went back inside the counter area where they told us to go.

The site to store area was a D shaped ring of counters with an opening in the counters at about 5 o'clock in the D. The back of the D was along a wall, and I was standing in front of these cabinets that ran along the wall. I was directly across from the opening in the counter, and this is where people were coming into the D shaped area as they urged more and more people inside the "Site to Store" area.

While we were waiting, one lady brought her 2 and 3 year old children inside and was standing by me. She asked me to watch her children while she went back out to get her Granny Faye.

I said, "sure" and she went back outside the D area to find her. She came back a couple of minutes later with Granny Faye, who was 85, a young Down syndrome woman, and another young lady who had her other baby who was about 6 months old. They all came back with her inside the D area. As they came through the gap in the counters, I felt God tell me, "These are for you to take care of." I did not know what was coming or what that meant, but my heart said, "amen".

I was sitting on the counter, and just seconds after they all got beside me, the lights went out, and there was a mighty rush of wind, which caused extreme pressure in my ears, and blew out the doors and windows. Someone yelled "Get down!" And we all jumped off the counter into the sea of people in front of us. I landed on and pulled down Granny Faye, and several others. We were a mass of twisted arms, legs, and bodies, who were screaming, crying and praying. I had a moment before all this happened when I thought, "I should pray, but what will people think?" And then again, "I should pray, but what if I get into trouble." I decided I did not care what happened, and began to pray as I covered Granny Faye and the Down syndrome woman. I was praying as loudly as I could when the roar, the shaking and rumbling, the shrieking of girders and I-beams breaking began. I did not know if I would live or die, but there was no fear. I was in the presence of God, and there was complete peace. I actually felt an area of protection around me. It was, and still is, one of the most remarkable moments of my life, for before this time I had struggled with wondering if God loved ME, Elina Elwell, with all my struggles and imperfections. It was an intimate, God and I, moment, and I will always be thankful for that witness of God's love to me.

The tornado lasted for about 90 seconds, but if you had asked me, I could not have told you how long it lasted, as time was warped. Some things happened instantly and others seemed prolonged, but eventually the roar faded and only the screaming and crying of hurt and scared people was all that was left ringing in the wreckage that remained. We found ourselves and about 40 other people trapped inside of the D shaped area. The space we were in was triangular in shape with the highest end of the roof about 36" on top of the counters and the lowest point being about 12" off the ground. There was a wall on top of the roof on the low

"The blessing of the LORD, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it." Proverbs 10:22.

There is a story of two elderly sisters who lived in a community and attended the same congregation. One of them lived on a farm, which included a number of acres of once very productive land. The other sister resided in an average size home that was kept clean and tidy.

The sister who lived on the farm had lived a hard life and after the passing of her husband had become very weary and needy. She didn't socialize with others much and as the years passed she became quite reclusive. Her sister, however, was very outgoing, had a wonderful husband and a lot of joy in her life. To one looking on, it would not appear that the two were even related, but they had in truth been brought up on the same family farm. While their father was living the one sister had managed to get Him to sign over the ownership of the farm to both herself and her husband. After their father passed, the other sister was left out of the inheritance completely and required to move from her farm home to live in a public housing unit in a nearby village. Her life was not blessed with financial riches but in time she had a loving husband, a joyful disposition and their lives were enriched with wonderful children.

The sister who continued to live on the farm had, in the beginning, a sizeable financial windfall. However, through the years that fortune gradually diminished through unwise business decisions, poor management and excessive living. In time she ended up with a bad marriage, estranged-spoiled children, poor health and a guilty conscience that troubled her the balance of her days. A beautiful part of this story was that in her declining years, her sister from the nearby village visited her on the farm and kindly cared for her each day. One sister seemed to have an abundance of worldly possessions, but alas it had come to naught, the other sister was poor in the things of the world but was rich in the blessings that are only given by God and had a lifetime filled with loving service to others.

In the end it would not be hard to say which sister had lived the better life, for those looking on could easily see how the Lord had blessed the sister who had been wronged, and in the beginning had to struggle to make ends meet to be able even to survive. But life goes on and there are changes that take place through the years. Some folks choose to follow the Lord and do the things that are right and just even though they have been faced with many heartrending circumstances in life. Soon the evidence of God's blessings begins to reveal themselves in their life. Peace and love reigns in their household and an attitude of loving service to others crowns their humble home. Riches, which are reckoned as treasures in Heaven, add to the joy of that household and a countenance that sparkles with bright anticipation for the future brings hope and cheer to each inhabitant. The reality of Heaven blesses the days of the righteous man and that hope becomes brighter and brighter as the years go by.

We can see from this story that the choices we make early in life have a tremendous impact on our future. It would be wise for each one to carefully consider what that impact may be. Decisions that are made on the basis of pleasing and gratifying the flesh often turn out to, in fact, cause one to lose the blessing of the Lord. When God's blessing is lost, sorrow and heartache is bound to follow. Notice this verse recorded in Galatians 6:8 "For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." This concept should become a standard rule of thumb to be used in all of our decisions in life. Decisions made on the basis of comfort and ease, without regard to the will of the Lord, are recipes for failure.

In the Old Testament we find two sisters-in-law that were widowed and made decisions that brought about two totally different outcomes. Ruth and Orpah both had married sons of Naomi and both loved their mother-in-law. In the passing of time, both of their husbands passed away and they were left to face life alone. When Naomi heard that the famine in her homeland of Israel had come to an end, she decided to return to her own country. As she started on her way home both followed her for a ways, then Naomi, knowing that the future held hardship and uncertainty, entreated them to return to their own people and families. Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and returned to her people, but Ruth made a choice in life that caught the attention of Almighty God by a statement that she fulfilled with her actions.

Notice her famous words, "And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods: return thou after thy sister in law. And Ruth said, Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the LORD do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me. When she saw that she was stedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her. So they two went until they came to Bethlehem...." Ruth 1:15-19.

To make a statement like this Ruth obviously knew something about the God of Israel, and knew that He was merciful and kind to His people. It also indicated how much she loved her mother-in-law. After they returned to Bethlehem, Ruth was so attentive and good to Naomi that the women of Israel said she was better than seven sons! When a portion of the blessing of the Lord was upon Ruth for her notable choice she was given a home, a financially established husband and a family. And the story doesn't end there! God included Ruth in the lineage of Jesus Christ! She became a part of the blessing that has blessed the whole earth.

The Scriptures are full of those who made right, noble and courageous choices—choices that exhibited faith in the living God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. There are many other names that could follow these pioneers of faith. Perhaps your name could likewise be included to an elite list of faithful men and women. They are there because of the choices they made to follow God and do His will and they rejoice in the riches that have no sorrow with them!

end, where the wall fell inward on top of us. There were people trapped under the rubble, some who had the roof and wall resting on them and others who had not gotten off the counter, and were pinned. Where we were, the roof was about six inches from my back, but we were completely unharmed. After the tornado was gone, we could only see a bit of sky around one girl, who had girders around all four sides of her and her head was sticking up through the roof, a collar of ceiling tiles around her. She was screaming, the lady behind me was screaming and the baby was crying as though its life depended on it. The Down syndrome girl had gone into mod mode, and was making a horrendous noise, rocking back and forth. This was causing the girders and rubble to shift and was hurting several of the people who were down at the narrow end of the triangle. I began to pray again, and she calmed down. Once again God intervened for us, and I have learned since then, that it is not normal for those in this condition to calm down so quickly and completely.

I am not sure how long we were trapped, but eventually others began breaking the ceiling away from the one girl with the girders around her, and people began crawling out of this hole. My legs had lost their feeling, and I could not get untangled from Granny Faye, so we let the rest of her family get out as quickly as they could, to keep the down-syndrome girl as calm as possible. We helped get everyone out that could walk, and as space allowed, untangled ourselves. Granny Faye could not walk or stand yet as she was weak and could not gain use of her legs yet, so I began uncovering some of the trapped people and helping them out. We eventually got everyone out, except us and one man that was pinned on the counter. He was conscious again, but in serious trouble, so we moved girders off of him and got him out.

Finally we were able to get one young man to push with me from the bottom while two pulled from the top, and we lifted Granny Faye out. I crawled out after her, and looked around at the complete and utter devastation that surrounded us. Some things were untouched, while other things were unrecognizable. There were racks of clothes that were in the back room, and the clothes were still hanging there perfectly in place, while a few feet over, the tiles had been sucked off the floor, and glass shards were imbedded in the cement wall. There was no pattern or reason to it all, it was just sheer chaos. It was as though God had held the roof off of us. All of the people around me were safe. I do not cease to marvel that God was there and have felt almost guilty at having nothing hurt or broken, while others all around us were dead, dying or forever altered. I can honestly say it was nothing I did, but the pure, true, mercy of God.

After I got Granny Faye out I helped some of the people who were assisting others with extreme medical needs, as I was smaller and could fit in some tight spaces, while Granny Faye rested. We then were told to get out as there was a gas leak somewhere and so we slid down the wall that had fallen and began trying to find her family. We did not know that they had made everyone else go a couple of blocks away because of the gas leak, so we could not find her family. After we got off the wall, we walked around the building and found my car. Since I had started at Walmart, I had not been able to get the lock on my locker to work so I began just tucking my car key into my pocket, and locking my purse and phone in the car trunk. When I found my car, it was demolished, but I could still reach my hand in and pop the trunk button. Amazingly, the trunk opened, and I was able to get my phone. I was finally able to get enough cell coverage to send a text to my family and let them know I was OK. This was another small miracle, as almost all the lockers were gone with everyone's belongings gone also. We looked for a couple of hours for Granny Faye's family, but she began suffering from exhaustion and shock, so I took her to the triage center they had set up. I promised I would try to find her family, although I did not know what else to do.

I helped those I could, but as darkness began to fall, they began asking those of us who could walk to get out of the way, as they were bringing in heavy equipment and we were in the way. So I walked over to Hobby Lobby and waited for my family to come get me. It took them some time to navigate through and around the streets to reach me, but eventually they found me and we went home. I continue to marvel at the grace and mercy God showed to me that day, and to know that no matter what happens, God is always one prayer away. He loves me and cares for me, even when life is rough or uncomfortable. I still struggle with why I lost so little and others lost everything. As I sit and type this, I am grateful that I am sitting in the living room with all my children and my husband nearby. So many people lost so much and will never be "normal" again. Their children and parents are gone. Their homes rebuilt, but empty of sentimental treasures that we hold dear. God has truly been good to me, but most precious to me is the knowledge that He truly loves me. I have so much to be thankful for, and I want to glorify God with every day that He gives me.

I Am Your Tongue

Beware of how you use me, for though I am one of the smallest members of your body, I am yet one of the deadliest. I am able to set the world aflame with justice or with injustice. I am able to keep homes alive or to kill them. I am able to inspire or to discourage. I can knit loved ones together or be a sword cutting swiftly through the strongest bonds.

Put guards upon me and use me aright and I will become one of your strongest weapons for good. Misuse me and I will become the means of your destruction. Let me run wild without thought of consequences and I will tear down all that you hold dear. —Selected

Little Things

'Twas only a kind, "Good morning,"

She spoke as she hurried by,
Nor paused to think that this greeting
Would brighten a clouded sky.

'Twas only a little errand

For someone—she thought not at all
That He who ruleth the heavens
Would notice a deed so small.

'Twas only a look so tender,

Only a fond caress,
But the heart of the aged was lightened
More than ever she'd guess.

'Twas only a letter she'd written

And sent to a distant friend,
Quite thoughtless, perhaps, of the mission
'Twould fill at its journey's end.

'Twas only a word of comfort;

Only a smile to cheer;
'Twas only a prayer in secret,
But it fell on a list'ning ear.

And thus the day had ended

With only the little things done,
Although she'd unceasingly labored
From the rising of the sun.

Only the little things—only

These things we regard as so small—
But had she been waiting for great things,
She ne'er would have done these at all.

And how many blessings were scattered

As swift on her way she sped?
She never will know till in Heaven
The Book of Remembrance is read.

FAITH AND VICTORY FAITH AND VICTORY FAITH AND VICTORY FAITH AND VICTORY FAITH AND VICTORY

Under His Wing

By Sis. Lana Johnson

*The place where you are seems very dark,
And you cannot see a thing!
Although it is dark, you are close to His heart
Because you are under His wing!*

*If we can't see our own way,
We'll see His much more clear.
To let Him guide us every day
Will help us overcome our fear.*

*He'll give us treasures in darkness,
Hidden riches in secret places,
What is better wealth to the righteous
Than to have His love and graces!?*

*So when it seems dark, and you feel alone,
And the fight is too hard to do,
Remember that God is still on His throne,
He is fighting these battles for you!*

*You'll see more clearly in the dark
If to Him you'll hold on and cling.
Because you're never closer to His heart
Than when you are under His wing!*

*Then, oh, what spoils you will behold,
When His light dispels the dark!
And that all the while His wing did enfold,
You were right there next to His heart!*

Isaiah 45:3; Psalm 17:8; Psalm 91:1, 4; II Chronicles 20:1-25.

Using the singular wing is to depict the wing that is on the side of His heart; and it also expresses the thought that it is a place for each one of us individually and personally.
